OLD GLORY AND 3 AVIATORS BELIEVED LOST

NOW MISSING FOR MORE THAN 24 HOURS TODAY

SHIPS UNABLE TO FIND TRACE OF PLANE OR ITS OC-CUPANTS

POSSIBILITY THE MEN MAY HAVE BEEN RESCUED BY VESSEL WITHOUT WIRELESS

New York, Sept. 8.—(UP)—The monoplane Old Glory and her three airmen who tried to fly to Rome had been missing more than 24 hours today.

At 6:06 A. M., E. S. T., 27 hours had elapsed since Lloyd W. Bertaud, pilot and radio operator, sent an S O S over the ocean from a position between 700 and 900 miles off Newfoundland. It was believed today that the men were lost.

Ships which hurried to the approximate position of Old Glory yesterday were unable to find trace of the plane or its occupants.

Bertaud, James Dewitt Hill and Philip Payne might have been rescued by a vessel without wireless. They might still be afloat in their plane today or in the rubber boat with which their plane was equipped. But the probability seemed to be that Old Glory and her crew and passenger were lost forever as were Nungesser, Coll, Princess Anne Lowenstein-Wertheim, F. F. Minchin and Leslie Hamilton.

Like the White Bird of the Frenchmen and the St. Raphael of the English fliers, Old Glory flew over the ocean and disappeared. If Old Glory's men have died the toll exacted by the air upon long distance fliers have been increased to 18 since April.

There was a possibility yesterday that Old Glory might have overcome her difficulties; that radio trouble might have prevented Bertaud from reporting the good news. But when the plane failed to appear over Europe last night that faint hope vanished.

Forty-four hours had elapsed at 8:31 A. M. today, eastern standard time, since Old Glory left Old Orchard, Me. The plane carried enough fuel for 50 hours in the air. There was no doubt that if it had remained in the air it would have reached Europe by now.

Nor was there much hope left that Old Glory might be picked up at sea. The ocean liners Carmania and Transylvania, which turned out of their courses yesterday and proceeded full speed to the position where they believed Old Glory went down continued towards New York last night after searching for hours without finding any trace of the plane or its occupants.

Both Commander Bone of the Transylvania and Commander Race of the Carmania reported the sea too rough to hold out any hope that either the plane or the collapsible rubber boat still remained afloat.

Commander Race's wireless to the United Press was as follows:

"10:20 P. M., Greenwich time. It is now nighttime and quite dark. Regret search for missing plane Old Glory without result. Weather conditions fresh westerly wind, cloudy, squally and rough sea breaking. Consider small chance survival of collapsible boat under present conditions. Proceeding on great circle to Cape Race."

Commander Bone radioed the Cunard office:

"Have searched area without result. Think little hope of survival in view of rough seas at time of casualty. California seeking northward and American Merchant to eastward. Am proceeding on voyage."

The S. S. Capulin when last heard from was still searching and the California and the American Merchant also were believed still along the probable scene of the disaster to the plane. But the fact that the Transylvania and the Carmania were first to reach the scene and found nothing gave little reason for hoping that the other vessels would be any more successful.

"All vessel who have joined in search," messaged Captain Shaw of the Capulin to the United Press, "report no evidence of the missing

Chicago, Sept. 8.—(UP)—Differences of rival bootleggers were blamed by police today for explosions which killed three men and destroyed two buildings in which still were believed to have been operating.

Fires followed both the explosions. One blast, occurring in the vicinity of Mercy hospital, broke windows of the institution and caused so much uneasiness among patients that outside physicians and nurses were called to assist the regular staff and quieting them.

One man was seriously injured and two firemen were hurt.

The first explosion occurred in a garage in the rear of the hospital. A truck driver had driven into an alley shortly before the explosion. His machine was reduced to a mass of twisted steel and the driver was killed. He was not identified.

Louis Kramer, another truck driver, was blown through the windshield of his machine and seriously injured.

Two men were killed in an explosion and fire at a building occupied by a paint company less than an hour after the first blast. One man was dead when police arrived. His name had not been learned. The other, Joseph Bangora, died in a hospital.

Police found parts of a large still in the paint company building which they believed was used in manufacturing illicit alcohol.

Prohibition agents and police then raided a building opposite the garage, arrested 13 men and confiscated a 75 gallon still. Those arrested denied knowledge of the bombings.

Continuing diligent look-out.

Publication by Hearst papers today of telegrams exchanged between William Randolph Hearst, publisher and backer of the flight, and Philip A. Payne, editor of the New York Mirror and passenger on Old Glory, disclosed that Hearst hoped the flight would not take place.

In a telegram sent by him last Friday from San Diego, Hearst said he would not assume responsibility for the flight and would proceed "only if the government will assume authority and responsibility."

"The flight is not undertaken for commercial purposes," Hearst continued, "but to advance aviation and it is doubtful whether in the light of recent events these flights do advance aviation."

"These numerous disasters may retard it. Therefore I await the sanction of the government."

Payne replied that F. Trubee Davidson, assistant secretary of war, "pronounced Old Glory the finest ship to attempt the trans-Atlantic flight."

"In addition," Payne continued, "Mr. Coolidge has sponsored the flight by putting a letter on Old Glory to the king while Secretary of State Kellogg has sent a message to Mussolini. No plane has had such official sponsoring as Old Glory. Two Croydon Airport, Eng., Sept. 8.—The trans-Atlantic monoplane Sir John Carling was overdue at this field today and officials were becoming anxious regarding its fate.

An official of the airdrome told the United Press he believed the fliers had only a "fifty-fifty" chance for success at 2 P. M. today.

Croydon Airdrome, Eng., Sept. 8.—Unfavorable weather, including rain over Ireland and England, today awaited the arrival of the monoplane Sir John Carling which was expected here about 1 P. M. (7 A. M. eastern standard time).

Croydon officials believed James D. Medcalf and Terrence Tully, who left Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, yesterday morning in fair weather had encountered "erratic Atlantic weather" on their crossing to England.

The only condition in their favor today was a 40-mile west wind over southern Ireland and southwest England, and 25-mile winds in other places.

It was obvious at the field today that officials are losing their interest in trans-Atlantic flights. No special preparations had been made to receive the Sir John Carling, although this was the first of the trans-Atlantic flights with London as its ultimate destination.

However, commencing at noon a special lookout was to be maintained at the field.

The Sir John Carling when it arrives, will use the same hangar that housed the around-the-world plane, Pride of Detroit, during the recent stop-over of William S. Brock and Edward F. Schlee.

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 8.—(UP)—Two proceedings designed to save Harry Hill from trial in Stretator, Ill., for killing his mother, were scheduled for tomorrow as the youth's father, Dr. H. C. Hill, conferred with his attorneys regarding plans to save his son.

An extradition protest filed by Hill's attorneys was to be heard in Olympia tomorrow in Judge John A. Frater's court in a habeas corpus proceeding.

It was expected the latter hearing would be postponed pending the governor's action in the extradition case.

Dr. Hill arrived here late yesterday from Portland, Ore., by airplane—the end of a trans-continental trip undertaken to aid the boy who is charged with killing Dr. Hill's divorced wife. Illinois and Seattle attorneys were retained by the physician.

The woman is Mrs. H. F. Reynolds, wife of Rev. H. F. Reynolds. She was confronted with the man as she entered her apartment and the struggle ensued. The burglar escaped with $40 taken from the apartment but the bundle of clothing was saved.

Mrs. Reynolds said that Mr. Coolidge, then a nine-year-old boy, was a member of her Sunday school class.

She said today her only hope was that her son, who two weeks ago left Brunswick, Ga., on a flight to Brazil, had landed somewhere in the interior of South America and had been found by "the White Indians."

"If he fell in with them, I know he is safe," she said. "But there are hostile tribes of Indians and they would very likely kill him."

Birmingham, Ala., Sept. 7.—(UP)—Charles C. McCall, attorney general of Alabama, who recently convicted seven Ku Klux Klan floggers at Oneonta, Ala., two of them drawing penitentiary sentences, is here today directing a grand jury probe of masked floggings in this county.

McCall's arrival here just as the grand jury met followed repeated editorial invitations by the Birmingham Post, a Scripps-Howard newspaper, which had declared that there appeared to be slight possibility of prosecution of floggers by county agencies.

Accompanying Atty. Gen. McCall was John J. Haynes, first assistant attorney general of Alabama, who was McCall's right hand man in the prosecution of the floggers at Oneonta. This case earned McCall a national reputation, Klan secrets being barred and two of the seven defendants being sent to the penitentiary and four others given jail sentences for the flogging of Jeff Calloway, who was seized by hooded men near a church.

Chief interest in local cases centers around the floggings of Arthur Hitt, a negro farmer near Birmingham. Hitt was taken from his home

SEN. MAC MASTER
ISSUES WARNING
TO THE G. O. P.

WARNS AGAINST PRESIDENTIAL
VETO OF ANOTHER FARM
MEASURE

WAS AN ARDENT SUPPORTER OF
LATE McNARY-HAUGEN
BILL

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Rapid City, S. D., Sept. 8.—First evidences of the western political forecast to break after President Coolidge's return to Washington were publicly posted in South Dakota today.

Senator MacMaster, republican, South Dakota advocate of the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill, who has lived silently in a cabin within a mile of Mr. Coolidge all summer, issued a statement in which he warned against another presidential veto of the farm measure.

"If such a measure is vetoed again and the farmers again are denied the relief they must have, then the republican party had better sit up and take notice," MacMaster said.

Simultaneously, former Governor Carl Gunderson issued a public appeal to his old political opponent, Senator Peter Norbeck, republican, South Dakota, to "bury the hatchet" on state affairs so that all republican factions could unite to swing the state for former Governor Frank O. Lowden, leading proponent of McNary-Haugen legislation. Lowden has been considered the leading opponent of the president.

These two developments were given added importance by the fact that since Mr. Coolidge's arrival in the Black Hills three months ago for his summer vacation all the political leaders of the state have been keeping quiet.

Their statements are the first of the season and tend to confirm the predictions of experienced state political writers who maintain that as soon as Mr. Coolidge reaches Washington next Sunday there will be plenty of political fireworks in this state over the farm issue. It has been held back thus far, they say, because people here did not desire, as hosts to the president, to seem discourteous.

MacMaster has declined to comment on the situation all summer but as he started back to Washington he authorized the statement that the McNary-Haugen bill would be passed next session; that sentiment for it has grown stronger since Mr. Coolidge's veto and that "sunshine and rain and a good crop do not cure the evil that holds agriculture in its devastating grip."

Norbeck, who acted as personal host of the president, although he voted for the McNary-Haugen bill too, has not yet made a statement. He is the big political power in the state and it has been said publicly that he would hardly like to influence the state for Lowden if Gunderson were connected with the Lowden movement.

When Gunderson read the story of how Norbeck was supposed to feel however, he wrote Norbeck a letter in which he stated:

"The tremendously important problem of equality for agriculture is involved in selecting the right presidential candidate and no individual or group of individuals should seek political advantage in attempting to ride on the Lowden or any other band wagon."

If this is the beginning of the forecast storm, events in this farm state after the president's departure may have a significant effect upon the race for the republican presidential nomination.

and terribly beaten about dawn one morning last June. The next day, county really records show, his farm was purchased by W. J. Worthington, reputed cyclops of a local Klan and admitted Klan leader. SIX SHIPS LEAVE NEW YORK
WITH 5,000 FORMER
DOUGHBOYS

By PAUL R. WHITE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, Sept. 8.—Ten years later, and with the war an even fainter scar in their memories, the men of khaki sailed once more today for France.

Six ships, peace-time carriers, left port with more than 5,000 former doughboys, the advance guard of American Legionnaires who will attend the annual convention in Paris.

On the docks bands played and drum corps rattled and shrilled. The happy travellers, many seeing one another for the first time in years, began to sing. There was some mention of a mademoiselle from Arcangettes and one group of voices boasted that there were no flies on them.

In some cases women were left on the dock, smiling. This time they knew with reasonable certainty that the men would come back. But the biggest difference between today and 1917 was that so many women went along. Wives, mothers and sisters stood on the docks by their husbands, sons and brothers, eager to visit with them the scenes where death once was always nearby.

By Saturday the number of Legionnaires will have exceeded 10,000 all due to arrive in Paris before the convention opens on the 19th.

The pilgrimage of peace began at 1 A. M., when the Cunarder Tuscania slipped from its pier and glided down the Hudson with some 1100 former soldiers. The Ansonia and Scythia of the same line, with 850 and 1,000 respectively sailed this forenoon. The DeGrasse of the French line, with 900, also joined the procession across the Atlantic.

Before the day is out the Cunarder Caronia and the Anchor liner Caledonia will leave with additional hundreds.

Everywhere one saw evidences of impromptu reunions. Division insignias tucked away in bureau drawers and recovered after lengthy search appeared on the Legionnaires and served as the signal for a thousand hearty backslaps.

"Do you remember when?" and "Whatever became of?" one heard everywhere.

The crowds on each pier were orderly. Ship news reporters said they never before had seen vessels cleared so quickly at sailing time when ships officers cried, "All visitors off."

The Scythia will stop at Boston and New England Legionnaires will embark there.

This second A. E. F. was a group grown older but more merry. The strain of yesterday was gone. Only the sight of an occasional buddy who walked on a crutch or whose coat sleeve was empty served as a reminder.

CHARLES W. SEWELL AND
PRES. J. F. REED

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 8.—(UP)—Minnesota farmers let it be known in a state fair program today that they were more determined than ever to get equality for their business.

Gov. Howard Gore, West Virginia was the leading speaker at the annual fair Farm Bureau Federation program. Other speakers were Mrs. Charles W. Sewell, home community work chairman, and J. F. Reed, president of the Minnesota Federation.

Already the bureau is on record with the national organization in favor of passage, with some changes, of the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill by the coming congress. That the veto of President Coolidge of the bill following its passage at the last congress was not popular in Minnesota was apparent in the tenor of today's meeting.

Gov. Gore, formerly secretary of agriculture, is known in his home state as a real dirt farmer, and is recognized as a leading authority on agricultural problems.

In spite of threatening skies, today was one of the most active of the week at the fair. The Farm Bureau program was the outstanding event on the day known as Duluth, pioneers' and farm bureau day.

The annual state declamatory contest opened in the agricultural building with fifty pupils from rural schools, winners in their localities, competing.

Reunions of farm boys competing in different contests and the state agricultural college alumni were held this afternoon.

The attendance Wednesday reached the 46,771 mark compared with 46,622 a year ago. It also rained on Wednesday of fair week in 1926. The feature horse race today is the 2:08 trot for the $1,500 Duluth purse. Other races are the 2:05 pace, $1,000; 2:14 pace, $1,000; five furlongs run, $300; and six and one-half furlongs run, $350.

In his address Governor Gore sounded a warning that unless leaders of American business join agriculture in working out a sound and practical solution to the nation's farm problem there is grave danger that a sentiment borne of acute conditions may force unsound and unwise legislation.

Birmingham, Ala., Sept. 7.—(UP)—Charles C. McCall, attorney general of Alabama, who recently convicted seven Ku Klux Klan floggers at Oneonta, Ala., two of them drawing penitentiary sentences, is here today directing a grand jury probe of masked floggings in this county.

McCall's arrival here just as the grand jury met followed repeated editorial invitations by the Birmingham Post, a Scripps-Howard newspaper, which had declared that there appeared to be slight possibility of prosecution of floggers by county agencies.

Accompanying Atty. Gen. McCall was John J. Haynes, first assistant attorney general of Alabama, who was McCall's right hand man in the prosecution of the floggers at Oneonta. This case earned McCall a national reputation, Klan secrets being barred and two of the seven defendants being sent to the penitentiary and four others given jail sentences for the flogging of Jeff Calloway, who was seized by hooded men near a church.

Chief interest in local cases centers around the floggings of Arthur Hitt, a negro farmer near Birmingham. Hitt was taken from his home

SEN. MAC MASTER
ISSUES WARNING
TO THE G. O. P.

WARNS AGAINST PRESIDENTIAL
VETO OF ANOTHER FARM
MEASURE

WAS AN ARDENT SUPPORTER OF
LATE McNARY-HAUGEN
BILL

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Rapid City, S. D., Sept. 8.—First evidence of the western political forecast to break after President Coolidge's return to Washington were publicly posted in South Dakota today.

Senator MacMaster, republican, South Dakota advocate of the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill, who has lived silently in a cabin within a mile of Mr. Coolidge all summer, issued a statement in which he warned against another presidential veto of the farm measure.

"If such a measure is vetoed again and the farmers again are denied the relief they must have, then the republican party had better sit up and take notice," MacMaster said.

Simultaneously, former Governor Carl Gunderson issued a public appeal to his old political opponent, Senator Peter Norbeck, republican, South Dakota, to "bury the hatchet" on state affairs so that all republican factions could unite to swing the state for former Governor Frank O. Lowden, leading proponent of McNary-Haugen legislation. Lowden has been considered the leading opponent of the president.

These two developments were given added importance by the fact that since Mr. Coolidge's arrival in the Black Hills three months ago for his summer vacation all the political leaders of the state have been keeping quiet.

Their statements are the first of the season and tend to confirm the predictions of experienced state political writers who maintain that as soon as Mr. Coolidge reaches Washington next Sunday there will be plenty of political fireworks in this state over the farm issue. It has been held back thus far, they say, because people here did not desire, as hosts to the president, to seem discourteous.

MacMaster has declined to comment on the situation all summer but as he started back to Washington he authorized the statement that the McNary-Haugen bill would be passed next session; that sentiment for it has grown stronger since Mr. Coolidge's veto and that "sunshine and rain and a good crop do not cure the evil that holds agriculture in its devastating grip."

Norbeck, who acted as personal host of the president, although he voted for the McNary-Haugen bill too, has not yet made a statement. It is the big political power in the state and it has been said publicly that he would hardly like to influence the state for Lowden if Gunderson were connected with the Lowden movement.

When Gunderson read the story of how Norbeck was supposed to feel, however, he wrote Norbeck a letter in which he stated:

"The tremendously important problem of equality for agriculture is involved in selecting the right presidential candidate and no individual or group of individuals should seek political advantage in attempting to ride on the Lowden or any other band wagon."

If this is the beginning of the forecast storm, events in this farm state after the president's departure may have a significant effect upon the race for the republican presidential nomination.

and terribly beaten about dawn one morning last June. The next day, county really records show, his farm was purchased by W. J. Worthington, reputed cyclops of a local Klan and admitted Klan leader. The county solicitor declared at the time that the Hitt farm had been sold for far less than its actual value.

POSTPONES FLIGHT OF CAPT. COURTNEY

Corunna, Spain, Sept. 8.—(UP)—Bad weather over the eastern Atlantic today caused further postponement of Captain Frank T. Courtney's flight to Horta, Azores Island, en route to New York. Hundreds of people who had gathered to see the flying boat continue the flight begun last Saturday were disappointed when a weather report from London made the scheduled departure foolhardy and impossible.

MEN OF KHAKI
SAIL ONCE MORE
FOR FRANCE

WAR IS BUT A FAINT SCAR IN THEIR MEMORIES
TODAY

SIX SHIPS LEAVE NEW YORK
WITH 5,000 FORMER
DOUGHBOYS

By PAUL R. WHITE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
New York, Sept. 8.—Ten years later, and with the war an even fainter scar in their memories, the men of khaki sailed once more today for France.

Six ships, peace-time carriers, left port with more than 5,000 former doughboys, the advance guard of American Legionnaires who will attend the annual convention in Paris.

On the docks bands played and drum corps rattled and shrilled. The happy travellers, many seeing one another for the first time in years, began to sing. There was some mention of a mademoiselle from Arcangettes and one group of voices boasted that there were no flies on them.

In some cases women were left on the dock, smiling. This time they knew with reasonable certainty that the men would come back. But the biggest difference between today and 1917 was that so many women went along. Wives, mothers and sisters stood on the decks by their husbands, sons and brothers, eager to visit with them the scenes where death once was always nearby.

By Saturday the number of Legionnaires will have exceeded 16,000 all due to arrive in Paris before the convention opens on the 19th.

The pilgrimage of peace began at 1 A. M., when the Cunarder Tuscania slipped from its pier and glided down the Hudson with some 1100 former soldiers. The Ansonia and Scythia of the same line, with 850 and 1,000 respectively sailed this forenoon. The DeGrasse of the French line, with 900, also joined the procession across the Atlantic.

Before the day is out the Cunarder Caronia and the Anchor liner Caledonia will leave with additional hundreds.

Everywhere one saw evidences of impromptu reunions. Division insignias tucked away in bureau drawers and recovered after lengthy search appeared on the Legionnaires and served as the signal for a thousand hearty backslaps.

"Do you remember when?" and "Whatever became of?" one heard everywhere.

The crowds on each pier were orderly. Ship news reporters said they never before had seen vessels cleared so quickly at sailing time when ships officers cried, "All visitors off."

The Scythia will stop at Boston and New England Legionnaires will embark there.

This second A. E. F. was a group grown older but more merry. The strain of yesterday was gone. Only the sight of an occasional buddy who walked on a crutch or whose coat sleeve was empty served as a reminder.

LET WISHES BE KNOWN
AT STATE FAIR

GOV. HOWARD GORE LEADING
SPEAKER AT FARM BUREAU PROGRAM

OTHER SPEAKERS WERE MRS.
CHARLES W. SEWELL AND
PRES. J. F. REED

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 8.—(UP)—Minnesota farmers let it be known in a state fair program today that they were more determined than ever to get equality for their business.

Gov. Howard Gore, West Virginia was the leading speaker at the annual fair Farm Bureau Federation program. Other speakers were Mrs. Charles W. Sewell, home community work chairman, and J. F. Reed, president of the Minnesota Federation.

Already the bureau is on record with the national organization in favor of passage, with some changes, of the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill by the coming congress. That the veto of President Coolidge of the bill following its passage at the last congress was not popular in Minnesota was apparent in the tenor of today's meeting.

Gov. Gore, formerly secretary of agriculture, is known in his home state as a real dirt farmer, and is recognized as a leading authority on agricultural problems.

In spite of threatening skies, today was one of the most active of the week at the fair. The Farm Bureau program was the outstanding event on the day known as Duluth, pioneers' and farm bureau day.

The annual state declamatory contest opened in the agricultural building with fifty pupils from rural schools, winners in their localities, competing.

Reunions of farm boys competing in different contests and the state agricultural college alumni were held this afternoon.

The attendance Wednesday reached the 46,771 mark compared with 46,622 a year ago. It also rained on Wednesday of fair week in 1926.

The feature horse race today is the 2:08 trot for the $1,500 Duluth purse. Other races are the 2:05 pace, $1,000; 2:14 pace, $1,000; five furlongs run, $300; and six and one-half furlongs run, $350.

In his address Governor Gore sounded a warning that unless leaders of American business join agriculture in working out a sound and practical solution to the nation's farm problem there is grave danger that a sentiment borne of acute conditions may force unsound and unwise legislation.

APPEAL TO COURTS TO PREVENT PICKETING

St. Paul, Sept. 8.—(UP)—The Herbert Manufacturing Co., of St. Paul today sought relief in court to prevent members of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America picketing the shop.

In a complaint filed today seeking to enjoin union members from their activities, it was charged that that union members frequently have gone to workers' homes to warn them to stay away from the company's shops.

A walkout of union members on June 29 followed the company refusal to sign a new working contract with the union.

90 DAY WORKHOUSE
FOR THREE WHO BEAT UP MOTORCYCLE COP

Minneapolis, Sept. 8.—(UP)—Three young men who beat up a motorcycle deputy sheriff during a weekend party in a cottage at Seton, Lake Minnetonka, today began their 90-day workhouse sentences given them late yesterday by Justice R. W. Meeker. They are Lawrence Burns, Archie McGraw and John Mische, all of the Mill City.

Deputy Sheriff Paul Ryder, when he sought to investigate a disturbance along the lake, was attacked by a gang of youths, and so severely beaten, that hospital attention was necessary.

Old Musical Instrument
Grove's Dictionary of Musicians makes the following comment on a musical instrument called the ocarina: "A family of small terra cotta instruments, in character somewhat resembling the flageolets, made of various sizes and introduced into this country by German or Tyrolean musicians. They are of no musical significance. They have a hollow, sweet sound, similar to that of a stopped organ pipe."

SOUNDING HIM OUT

They were trying thought-reading. "What did I just think of?" asked Max of his friend Arthur.
"You thought, Max, that if I were to ask you now for the loan of $50 till the first of next month you would say you couldn't do it. Was that right?"
"No, that's wrong."
"Really? Then you can let me have the money."

Show-Girl Arithmetic

"Here's a good one," said the show girl. "When the manager asked me my age last night I couldn't, to save my life, remember whether I was twenty-two or twenty-four."
"What did you do?" asked another show girl.
"Split the difference and told him I was seventeen."

Yields Valuable Timber

Yew is one of the most characteristic evergreen trees in Great Britain. It attains a great age and yields an exceedingly hard timber. Yew was the favorite wood for the old English long-bow, and its extreme hardness renders it suitable for cabinet work, axletrees and the like where strength and durability are required.

No. 37

It will soon be time to start liking winter better than summer.

And another thing—if we were an inventor we'd try to invent a non-skid noodle for chicken soup.

It's a wise man who orders his coal early. We can deliver promptly now. Maybe later there will be a rush and somebody will be disappointed.

Which reminds us that soon it will be off with the screens and on with the storm sash. Seems as tho we do most of our mileage up and down a ladder. Some day we're going to balk and refuse to have anything more to do with such "contraptions."

Mary had a little dog. It was a noble pup. It stood upon his hind legs. When you held its front legs up.

Every home has somebody in it that won't close the doors.

There are a lot of things in Brainerd about which something ought to be done.

Naturally you'd expect us to boost STANDARD COAL, because we have it to sell. But when so many regular users in this community also boost it there can't be much argument, can there? It's good coal.

"Marie and I agreed that after we were married I should decide all major questions and she would decide the minor ones."

"How has it worked out?"
"We have been married several years and I am grateful to say there have been no major questions."

We've just had an argument. How many brides in this community can quote the price of a sack of flour? Con O'Brien says there are just as many as there are grooms who can raise the price of one.

CUYUNA RANGE FAIR SET FOR SEPT. 16, 17

Exhibition Will Take Place This Year in Crosby Armory; Special Programs Arranged

Brainerd Merchants Aid in Boosting Prize List; Large Entry Expected

The Cuyuna Range Agricultural Fair, the pride of the farmers of the range, will be given at the Crosby Armory September 16 and 17.

In connection with the large display of agricultural products, interesting and worthwhile programs of entertainment have been arranged for both Friday and Saturday, with popular agricultural speakers engaged. A University of Minnesota agricultural specialist is scheduled to speak Friday, while Thomas Cashman of Owatonna will be on the program Saturday evening. Band music will be furnished by the Crosby band.

Saturday afternoon, Sept. 17, an outdoor program of races, kitenball, horse shoe throwing, etc., will be staged on the grounds next to the Armory. Generous prizes will be awarded to the winners in each case. It is hoped that all farmers and others interested in agriculture will spend the afternoon and evening at the exhibit.

The business and professional men of Brainerd, Crosby, Branton and Deerwood have donated over $600 in cash and merchandise to be given as prizes to the various exhibitors. All exhibits should be taken to the Crosby Armory Thursday afternoon, Sept. 15.

Made Famous by Scott

Ellen's Isle in Loch Katrine, Scotland, is the resort of the heroine in the well-known poem, "Lady of the Lake," by Sir Walter Scott.

OUTING

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Drummond of Lake Forest, Ill., are guests at the Ruth Lake Farm and Summer Resort of Harold Worsley. Mr. Drummond is the son of the late Judge Drummond of Chicago, one of Chicago's greatest jurists. Mr. and Mrs. Drummond have been looking after their holdings in northwest Wisconsin and motored to spend a few days with their old friend and neighbor, of bygone days. Mr. Worsley is seeing to it that the table is well supplied with fish.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ludolph of the Femco Farms at Breckenridge, Minn., were callers at the DeMolay farm and summer home a few hours this week, calling upon Dr. and Mrs. Bywater. Mr. Ludolph is part owner and manager of Femco Farms. They are breeders of Holstein cattle and have carried off the highest honors in the world for many of their herd. They also breed Percheron horses, thoroughbred saddle horses, Duroc Jersey hogs and White Orpington chickens.

Dairy day at DeMolay farm and summer home last Saturday was very well attended and Mr. Donovan gave those in attendance a splendid demonstration in judging dairy cows and sires as well as calves. While there were several producers in attendance, the best thing was the splendid interest of ten or twelve boys who are interested in calf club work and dairy cows. This alone was well worth the effort of getting Mr. Donovan, extension Dairy Specialist of the Agricultural College Extension Department. Mr. Donovan was very well pleased with the showing made in interest as well as attendance and has assured us that he will do all he can to make these meetings a regular thing for the benefit of the people of this vicinity. A demonstration day for chicken growers is now under way and will be advertised later for the benefit of those interested in that branch of the industry. We are much indebted to the newspapers of the surrounding communities for their splendid help in giving this publicity. It is for the benefit of Crow Wing county and the adjoining counties, so any aid to the undertaking, helps build up the agricultural communities.

The Emily school opened for the year last Tuesday with DeWard Hawley as superintendent and Mrs. Beth Spornetz as assistant. This is the third year for this efficient corps of teachers and Emily can well be congratulated for having such teachers in their school. Perfect harmony and splendid team work has built up a splendid school.

DAGGETT BROOK

Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Ringering were guests at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Ringering Sunday.

Carl Young was a visitor in Brainerd Tuesday.

Miss Esther Cronquist of Brainerd is visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Cronquist for a few days.

Mr. Velet of Eugene, Ore., is visiting at the home of his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Lutes.

Clarence Englehart and family were business visitors in Brainerd Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Cronquist visited at Glencoe, Minn., for a few days.

Almost everyone is busy threshing or preparing to thresh.

Mrs. Ira Ringering visited at the home of her mother, Mrs. Dan Guile, in Brainerd Tuesday.

ESDON

Geo. Powers and wife from Los Angeles, Calif., and Crawford Sheldon and family of Little Falls spent Thursday at Guin's.

Several Twin City folks spent the week end on Crooked Lake: Louis and Elmer Hanson, Dr. Bert Carlson, 4100 E. Lake St., K. C. Ghostley and Fred Ross all of Minneapolis and John Schwenk, Walter H. Lake, J. Wold and W. J. Menk of St. Paul.

Dr. Dean of Iowa City, dean of Iowa university and family are occupying a cottage at A. Stafford's.

Mrs. L. R. Sorenson of St. Paul is visiting at Guin's.

Harold Lee went to Crosby to attend high school.

Carroll and Donald Guin are attending Brainerd high school.

Miss Beatrice Guin is teaching in Villard, Minn., and Miss Marie Guin at Mission Lake.

Martin Seipp was injured on Saturday while leading a cow, which threw him against a wire fence, scratching his arm badly, and then tramped on him, fracturing some ribs, and a shoulder. But Mr. Seipp is able to get around, so hopes that he will be none the worse, for his accident.

H. W. Olson of Brainerd has bought the Dan Chord place, and is moving his goods out.

Miss Gertrude Bennett of Crosby began school in District No. 42 on Tuesday.

Rev. Morris Evers and wife of Brainerd visited at Guin's on Tuesday.

NISSWA COMMUNITY CHURCH MEETING

Nisswa, Minn., Sept. 8.—The annual meeting of the Nisswa Community church, Inc., will be held in the church here September 11 at 2:30 P. M.

All interested in the community church idea, and especially those living within the five mile radius from Nisswa are cordially invited to attend.

Reports of the year's proceedings and accomplishments and election of officers will be a part of the program of the meeting.

The topic, "What Can We Do to Carry Out the Purpose of This Organization—To Promote the Religious and Social Well-Being of the Community," will be opened for discussion by the president, D. C. Henderson.

'LINDY' SCRIBBLES NAME ON RANGER'S CABIN IN 1923

Scribbled on the timbers forming the walls of the Cache Bay Ranger Station on Lake Saganaga together with other names is one that now stands out from among the others but on May 19, 1923 was just another of the numerous canoeists who scribbled notes to other outdoorsmen who travelled the lakes and rivers of the great northwest via the canoe.

That name is Charles A. Lindbergh now Colonel Lindbergh, flying idol of the world.

Boy Scouts of this territory who recently returned from an extended canoe trip in the Superior Lake Forest reported for the first time, the seeing of Lindbergh's name on the Ranger's cabin. They were the first to notice the name since the aviator's great accomplishment.

To make certain that the man who scribbled his name on the forsaken cabin on May 19, 1923, was the noted Lindbergh, information was sought from relatives of the flying colonel with the result that the fact was definitely established that the lone eagle had been one of a party of canoeists who passed that way in 1923.

ROD LA ROCQUE and DOLORES DEL RIO in "RESURRECTION"

"Resurrection," the pictureization of Count Leo Tolstoy's immortal story of love and sacrifice that opened at the Lyceum theatre last night, is one of the most realistic pictures that has ever been brought to the screen. Congratulations on the film are in order to Director Edwin Carewe, to United Artists, and to Rod La Rocque and Dolores del Rio, principals. The Inspiration Pictures—Edwin Carewe production of Tolstoy's classic is a powerful and entirely worthy one. No one should miss seeing this great film, showing tonight also Friday.

MARY K. BROWNE VISITS HER OLD HAUNTS

WON HER FIRST NATIONAL CHAMPIONSHIP 15 YEARS AGO

AT THE PHILADELPHIA CRICKET CLUB, MAKES COMPARISONS

By MARY K. BROWNE (United Press Staff Correspondent) (Copyright, 1927, by United Press)

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 8.—I came back again today to my old haunts, at the Philadelphia Cricket club, where I won my first national championship fifteen years ago. I saw the little and big girls all under eighteen working like beavers for the illustrious title, National Girls' Champion of the United States.

It brought me back to all the excitement which attends the play of a youngster 3,000 miles away from home, who has never seen a grass tennis court, never been in such keen competition, never been the center of so much publicity, nor the recipient of telegrams with enthusiastic messages from home saying:

"We are sure you will win. Go in and show them there are still more good ones from California."

It is a lot to ask of a youngster to win her first tournament in a strange city. Should she get homesick—and I did at my first—and be unable to eat, then the stamina goes. Should the food and unaccustomed heat affect her she is not able to play her best game and near the end anything less than the best will not win.

"Midge" Gladman, of California, is favored to win the title. It is her first and last try. If she is successful it will be a very fine performance. She has reliable strokes, better on the left wing than the right. She is not better, insofar as strokes are concerned, than many others, but she excels them as a match player. She has that all-important thing, competitive spirit, which never says die nor ceases to play hard in the pinches.

The first question I asked each of the girls I talked to was, "How old are you?" The answers came promptly, accurately and unflinchingly. Can you imagine what the answers would have been had I pilled the same question to the entries in the Women's Middle States Championship which is in progress on the same courts?

There seems to be a perfect bevy of youngsters with the best developed strokes I have ever seen among the comers of any other nation or here in America as an ensemble. There is not an underhand service among them such as little Betty Nathall's, of England.

There is a tremendous advantage in having a number of girls from nearly the same locality and particularly nice to have a whole family of girls all playing tennis, like the four Palfrey sisters of Boston. For they have plenty of opportunity to practice with each other.

The California girls never lack good practice. But take a girl like

Miss Green from Kansas City, she has a world of promise, all developed in the amazingly short time of one year. She is a lone feminine star in her city.

All of her practice must come with men and as a result she over-hits and is very wild in her ground strokes. She needs practice against women badly, so she will learn to get the ball in play and work up to her kill.

She is tall, angular, built like a wiry boy. She has a great deal of strength. Her service is better than that of the other girls and she even outshines the entries in the women's event. In fact, Helen Wills and Helen Jacobs are the only women with better service than this Kansas City girl. But like the long drive in golf, that is not the most important shot in the game.

CUYUNA RANGE FAIR SET FOR SEPT. 16, 17

Exhibition Will Take Place This Year in Crosby Armory; Special Programs Arranged

Brainerd Merchants Aid in Boosting Prize List; Large Entry Expected

The Cuyuna Range Agricultural Fair, the pride of the farmers of the range, will be given at the Crosby Armory September 16 and 17.

In connection with the large display of agricultural products, interesting and worthwhile programs of entertainment have been arranged for both Friday and Saturday, with popular agricultural speakers engaged. A University of Minnesota agricultural specialist is scheduled to speak Friday, while Thomas Cashman of Owatonna will be on the program Saturday evening. Band music will be furnished by the Crosby band.

Saturday afternoon, Sept. 17, an outdoor program of races, kitenball, horse shoe throwing, etc., will be staged on the grounds next to the Armory. Generous prizes will be awarded to the winners in each case. It is hoped that all farmers and others interested in agriculture will spend the afternoon and evening at the exhibit.

The business and professional men of Brainerd, Crosby, Branton and Deerwood have donated over $600 in cash and merchandise to be given as prizes to the various exhibitors. All exhibits should be taken to the Crosby Armory Thursday afternoon, Sept. 15.

Made Famous by Scott

Ellen's Isle in Loch Katrine, Scotland, is the resort of the heroine in the well-known poem, "Lady of the Lake," by Sir Walter Scott.

OUTING

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Drummond of Lake Forest, Ill., are guests at the Ruth Lake Farm and Summer Resort of Harold Worsley. Mr. Drummond is the son of the late Judge Drummond of Chicago, one of Chicago's greatest jurists. Mr. and Mrs. Drummond have been looking after their holdings in northwest Wisconsin and motored to spend a few days with their old friend and neighbor, of bygone days. Mr. Worsley is seeing to it that the table is well supplied with fish.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ludolph of the Femco Farms at Breckenridge, Minn., were callers at the DeMolay farm and summer home a few hours this week, calling upon Dr. and Mrs. Bywater. Mr. Ludolph is part owner and manager of Femco Farms. They are breeders of Holstein cattle and have carried off the highest honors in the world for many of their herd. They also breed Percheron horses, thoroughbred saddle horses, Duroc Jersey hogs and White Orpington chickens.

Dairy day at DeMolay farm and summer home last Saturday was very well attended and Mr. Donovan gave those in attendance a splendid demonstration in judging dairy cows and sires as well as calves. While there were several producers in attendance, the best thing was the splendid interest of ten or twelve boys who are interested in calf club work and dairy cows. This alone was well worth the effort of getting Mr. Donovan, extension Dairy Specialist of the Agricultural College Extension Department. Mr. Donovan was very well pleased with the showing made in interest as well as attendance and has assured us that he will do all he can to make these meetings a regular thing for the benefit of the people of this vicinity. A demonstration day for chicken growers is now under way and will be advertised later for the benefit of those interested in that branch of the industry. We are much indebted to the newspapers of the sur-

'LINDY' SCRIBBLES NAME ON RANGER'S CABIN IN 1923

Scribbled on the timbers forming the walls of the Cache Bay Ranger Station on Lake Saganaga together with other names is one that now stands out from among the others but on May 19, 1923 was just another of the numerous canoeists who scribbled notes to other outdoorsmen who travelled the lakes and rivers of the great northwest via the canoe.

That name is Charles A. Lindbergh now Colonel Lindbergh, flying idol of the world.

Boy Scouts of this territory who recently returned from an extended canoe trip in the Superior Lake Forest reported for the first time, the seeing of Lindbergh's name on the Ranger's cabin. They were the first to notice the name since the aviator's great accomplishment.

To make certain that the man who scribbled his name on the forsaken cabin on May 19, 1923, was the noted Lindbergh, information was sought from relatives of the flying colonel with the result that the fact was definitely established that the lone eagle had been one of a party of canoeists who passed that way in 1923.

ROD LA ROCQUE and DOLORES DEL RIO in "RESURRECTION"

"Resurrection," the picturization of Count Leo Tolstoy's immortal story of love and sacrifice that opened at the Lyceum theatre last night, is one of the most realistic pictures that has ever been brought to the screen. Congratulations on the film are in order to Director Edwin Carewe, to United Artists, and to Rod La Rocque and Dolores del Rio, principals. The Inspiration Pictures-Edwin Carewe production of Tolstoy's classic is a powerful and entirely worthy one. No one should miss seeing this great film, showing tonight also Friday.

MARY K. BROWNE VISITS HER OLD HAUNTS

WON HER FIRST NATIONAL CHAMPIONSHIP 15 YEARS AGO

AT THE PHILADELPHIA CRICKET CLUB, MAKES COMPARISONS

By MARY K. BROWNE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
(Copyright, 1927, by United Press)

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 8.—I came back again today to my old haunts at the Philadelphia Cricket club, where I won my first national championship fifteen years ago. I saw the little and big girls all under eighteen working like beavers for the illustrious title, National Girls' Champion of the United States.

It brought me back to all the excitement which attends the play of a youngster 3,000 miles away from home, who has never seen a grass tennis court, never been in such keen competition, never been the center of so much publicity, nor the recipient of telegrams with enthusiastic messages from home saying:

"We are sure you will win. Go in and show them there are still more good ones from California."

It is a lot to ask of a youngster to win her first tournament in a strange city. Should she get homesick—as I did at my first—and be unable to eat, then the stamina goes. Should the food and unaccustomed heat affect her she is not able to play her best game and near the end anything less than the best will not win.

"Midge" Gladman, of California, is favored to win the title. It is her first and last try. If she is successful it will be a very fine performance. She has reliable strokes, better on the left wing than the right. She is not better, insofar as strokes are concerned, than many others, but she excels them as a match player. She has that all-important thing, competitive spirit, which never says die nor ceases to play hard in the pinches.

The first question I asked each of the girls I talked to was, "How old are you?" The answers came promptly, accurately and unflinchingly. Can you imagine what the answers would have been had I pried the same question to the entries in the Women's Middle States Championship which is in progress on the same courts?

There seems to be a perfect bevy of youngsters with the best developed strokes I have ever seen among the corners of any other nation or here in America as an ensemble. There is not an underhand service among them such as little Betty Nathall's, of England.

There is a tremendous advantage in having a number of girls from nearly the same locality and particularly nice to have a whole family of girls all playing tennis, like the four Palfrey sisters of Boston. For they have plenty of opportunity to practice with each other.

The California girls never lack good practice. But take a girl like

Miss Green from Kansas City, she has a world of promise, all developed in the amazingly short time of one year. She is a lone feminine star in her city.

All of her practice must come with men and as a result she over-hits and is very wild in her ground strokes. She needs practice against women badly, so she will learn to get the ball in play and work up to her kill.

She is tall, angular, built like a wary boy. She has a great deal of strength. Her service is better than that of the other girls and she even outshines the entries in the women's event. In fact, Helen Wills and Helen Jacobs are the only women with better service than this Kansas City girl. But like the long drive in golf, that is not the most important shot in the game.

ADVICE AND EXAMPLE IN FORESTRY

THE nation-wide taxation survey, begun in Minnesota more than a year ago under the direction of experts employed by the United States government, has led to the publication of a bulletin prepared by H. H. Chapman of Yale, one of those who directed the gathering of information, as referred to editorially by the St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Mr. Chapman, it will be remembered, accompanied the interim commission on a forestry survey of northern counties of the state, which body included in its personnel members of the house and senate, the lieutenant governor, the speaker of the house, forestry experts and others, who were entertained at luncheon here by the Brainerd Chamber of Commerce.

Doctor Chapman's bulletin contains an excellent summary of the northern Minnesota tax delinquency situation. He finds that whereas outside of the forest countries and exclusive of the Red River valley, Minnesota's current tax delinquency is less than 4 per cent, it runs as high as 55 per cent in Lake of the Woods county, 40 per cent in Beltrami and 32 per cent in Koochiching.

The causes are first, excessive tax rates and, second, low values due to removal of timber from the land. The remedy is the production of forest crops on lands suitable only for reforestation. "In this development the matter of state lands must play an increasingly important role," Doctor Chapman concludes.

It appears inevitable that this should be so. In three counties alone there are now close to a million acres of absolutely unredeemed lands. This land can be considered to be state land. The amount is steadily increasing, while the amount held in absolute state ownership changes little from year to year. If the state, with its forest service and machinery for fire protection and reforestation and with millions of dollars in its trust funds gained from the denuding of its own lands, does not put these lands to profitable use through reforestation, the private owner can be expected to regard with skepticism the reforestation statutes on the books.

As long as the state lands are permitted to lie idle, through lack of adequate protection a potential menace of fire, they constitute a discouragement and a handicap upon reforestation rather than an invitation to the private owner to reforest his lands. While the state remains inactive or only half-heartedly active, its attempts to shift the responsibility to the private owners can scarcely be expected to work.

"JUST LIKE NEW YORK"

THIS item is clipped from the "Montreal Standard." It is an excerpt from a lengthy article entitled "Montreal Will Suffer by Development of Waterway from Great Lakes to Sea":

"For Montreal owes its position, indeed owes its existence, to the fact that it is at the head of uninterrupted navigation to the sea. When the first explorers sailed up the St. Lawrence they were brought to a full stop by the Lachine Rapids, and in consequence the settlement at Montreal started.

"Since that date the construction of the Lachine Canal—with Canadian money—has made Montreal the center for the lake boats, on one hand, and the ocean-going boats on the other hand.

"Freight in enormous quantities pours down from the Lakes, is transhipped at Montreal, and loaded on vessels for all parts of Europe and the world. Montreal boasts the finest grain elevators in the world, and the fact that it is the largest grain-exporting center in the world, for over 300,000,000 bushels of grain a year are handled by the elevators here.

"There can be no doubt as to the fact that Montreal owes this position to its being at the head of ocean navigation—and there can be no doubt that the primary object of the St. Lawrence waterway development scheme is to alter the facts of nature so that Montreal no longer becomes the head of ocean navigation, but that ocean-going vessels will be enabled to go as far west as Duluth."

The above is typical of the Montreal opposition. Montreal would have the producers of western Canada, whose products are destined for export, continue to pay toll to Montreal. The opposition fails to state that Montreal was not originally at the head of navigation. Many millions of Canadian dollars were expended to dredge a 30-foot channel up to Montreal, to the detriment of the port of Quebec—a naturally large and deep port.

FAITH IN YOURSELF

LIFE is an island, entirely surrounded by risks; losses, troubles, hardships and misadventures of all sorts.

Most men go to pieces when they have had a few beatings. They wilt. They fade away. They crawl into a safe little corner and hide, while the great rough tide of glorious life rushes past them.

The fact is that defeat is the normal thing in this haphazard little world, and victory comes but seldom. Every victory usually is the result of a long series of defeats.

A man must have faith in himself and in what he is trying to do. He must say: "I can." He must back himself to win. He must bet on himself. He must have faith in the people he works with. He must believe in his team. He must see the better side of his co-workers and not think that his own point of view is the only right one. He must have faith in those great principles that make us superior to the animals of the forest—to Truth, Honesty, Sympathy, Justice, Progress.—Forbes Magazine and East Minneapolis Argus.

PIRATES' LEAD CUT TO HALF A GAME BY CINCINNATI
REDS

(By United Press)

Only Chicago and St. Louis of the National League pennant contenders were scheduled to play today and the position of the clubs cannot be changed by the single game. The standing:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Pittsburgh	76	53	.589
New York	75	53	.586
St. Louis	73	54	.575
Chicago	75	57	.568

Activity of the Cincinnati Reds in lowering averages of the four leaders was continued yesterday, this time at the expense of the Pirates. Fumbles proved costly and Cincinnati won 6 to 5, giving them three games of a five-game series and cutting the Pirates' lead to half a game.

A chance to push closer to the leaders was passed up by the Cubs who could do no better than split a double-header with the Cardinals. Lester Bell's home run with two on base in the sixth inning gave the Cardinals the start necessary to win the first game 6 to 2. But Chicago came back in the second and the Cub batters attacked Filnt Rhem savagely. Hack Wilson hit two home runs and Beck added another. The score was 8 to 4.

Brooklyn and Philadelphia also divided a double-header, the first game going to the Phils 3 to 2 and the second to Brooklyn, 9 to 1. Herman hit a home run in both games. Ferguson, Philadelphia, and Elliott, Brooklyn, were the winning pitchers.

Babe Ruth brought his total for the season to 49 by hitting two home runs in the game the Yankees won from the Red Sox, 12 to 10. New York won the game after Boston had scored eight runs in a wild fourth inning. It was the only American League game played.

Toledo, O.—Palmero held Louisville to five scattered hits, while his teammates battered Tincup for 18 hits and a 14 to 1 victory for Toledo. Louisville's lone tally came in the opening frame after two men had walked, followed by a sacrifice and a double steal.

Columbus, O.—Indianapolis defeated Columbus, 6 to 3, in one of the fastest games of the season. It was a pitchers' duel between Schupp and Meeker with honors divided. Zambro was hit hard in the final frame after he relieved Meeker.

BABE RUTH 10
HOMERS BEHIND
HIS 1921 RECORD

New York, Sept. 8.—(UP)—With 21 games left on the Yankee schedule, Babe Ruth is ten home runs behind his record of 59 homers made in 1921. On Sept. 7 of that year Babe made his 54th homer.

Ruth got his 48th and 49th home runs of the season in the Yankee-Red Sox game yesterday, giving him five home runs in two days. Gehrig has 45.

To break his record Ruth will have to hit an average of one home run every other day from now until the close of the season.

Chicago	75	57	.568

Activity of the Cincinnati Reds in lowering averages of the four leaders was continued yesterday, this time at the expense of the Pirates. Fumbles proved costly and Cincinnati won 6 to 5, giving them three games of a five-game series and cutting the Pirates' lead to half a game.

A chance to push closer to the leaders was passed up by the Cubs who could do no better than split a double-header with the Cardinals. Lester Bell's home run with two on base in the sixth inning gave the Cardinals the start necessary to win the first game 6 to 2. But Chicago came back in the second and the Cub batters attacked Flint Rhem savagely. Hack Wilson hit two home runs and Beck added another. The score was 8 to 4.

Brooklyn and Philadelphia also divided a double-header, the first game going to the Phils 3 to 2 and the second to Brooklyn, 9 to 1. Herman hit a home run in both games. Ferguson, Philadelphia, and Elliott, Brooklyn, were the winning pitchers.

Babe Ruth brought his total for the season to 49 by hitting two home runs in the game the Yankees won from the Red Sox, 12 to 10. New York won the game after Boston had scored eight runs in a wild fourth inning. It was the only American League game played.

Toledo, O.—Palmero held Louisville to five scattered hits, while his teammates battered Tincup for 18 hits and a 14 to 1 victory for Toledo. Louisville's lone tally came in the opening frame after two men had walked, followed by a sacrifice and a double steal.

Columbus, O.—Indianapolis defeated Columbus, 6 to 3, in one of the fastest games of the season. It was a pitchers' duel between Schupp and Meeker with honors divided. Zambro was hit hard in the final game after he relieved Meeker.

BABE RUTH 10 HOMERS BEHIND HIS 1921 RECORD

New York, Sept. 8.—(UP)—With 21 games left on the Yankee schedule, Babe Ruth is ten home runs behind his record of 59 homers made in 1921. On Sept. 7 of that year Babe made his 54th homer.

Ruth got his 48th and 49th home runs of the season in the Yankee-Red Sox game yesterday, giving him five home runs in two days. Gehrig has 45.

To break his record Ruth will have to hit an average of one home run every other day from now until the close of the season.

NORTHEAST BRAINERD PLAYS
THE SOUTH SIDE
TEAM

With all the flourish of a county fair, the three-game series of Northeast Brainerd vs. the South Side starts off tomorrow at 5 P. M. and to add a thrill, W. P. McFail, Fargo flier, has like the teams, the umpires and the Brainerd municipal band, donated his services and will go through his whole curriculum of loops, spins, wing overs, reverses, Immelman glides, etc., at the park.

It will be a great day for Athletic Park. The money derived from this game and the two to follow will go into the fund for improving the park, adding necessary fencing, terrace and road work.

McFail flew from Fargo yesterday for an hour and 45 minutes. He struck bad weather at Detroit Lakes, rose to some height and flew over it and near Wadena had to wade thru it. He flies a National Airway System new plane. Mr. McFail is licensed by the department of commerce, carries the regulation pilot's license and has been flying since 1921.

The aviator is making his headquarters at the Elks hotel and using the Boise field just north of the Echo stock farm for the take-off of his flights. He will be in town on Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday and expects to make commercial flights of 10 and 20 minutes' duration.

All that is now required to make the three-game series of the Northeast Brainerd and South Side teams a success in the way of aiding the park is a large crowd.

Hand bills calling attention to the game tomorrow night were scattered over Brainerd and vicinity by the aviator this afternoon. Get to the park early tomorrow, 5 P. M., and

TUNNEY AND DEMPSEY GO ON SEPT. 22

NATIONAL BROADCASTING COMPANY TO HANDLE THE CONTRACT

ONE OF GREATEST STATION HOOK-UPS IN HISTORY OF RADIO

Chicago, Sept. 8. (UP) — Plans for broadcasting a blow-by-blow account of the Tunney-Dempsey heavyweight championship fight Sept. 22 through the National Broadcasting Company were announced today by Tex Rickard, promoter.

The broadcast is to be sponsored by the Scripps-Howard newspapers and the voice of the announcer will be heard throughout the world by one of the greatest station hook-ups in the history of radio.

Rickard said he had contracted with the National Broadcasting Company for radio rights and the Scripps-Howard newspapers had, in turn, signed an agreement with the broadcasting company. Details were worked out between Rickard, M. H. Aylesworth, president of the N. B. C., and Roy W. Howard, chairman of the board of the Scripps-Howard newspapers.

Graham McNamee, famous announcer, will describe the fight through the microphone. McNamee filled a similar position in broadcasting the Dempsey-Sharkey fight under the same auspices from New York.

"It will be the most extensive world-wide broadcast ever attempted," Rickard said. "Interest in the fight is keen in Europe, Central and South America and Australia. The new short wave system will be used to send the ringside description to foreign countries.

"Of course, the great difference in time will be an important factor as it will be between 2 and 4 o'clock in the morning in Europe and when we cross the international dateline in the Pacific, McNamee will be talking into the next day.

"I have never known such intense universal interest in a single sporting event. It marks a new step in the development of radio and is an example of the swift, amazing process recorded since the first successful attempt to broadcast a sporting event when Dempsey met Carpentier in Jersey City in 1921."

Rickard said that Aylesworth reported today that the National Broadcasting Company has already closed with the following stations for the fight:

WEAF and WJZ, New York; WEEI and WBZ, Boston; WBZA, Springfield, Mass.; WTIC, Hartford, Conn.; WJAR, Providence, R. I.; WHAM, Rochester, N. Y.; WTAG, Worcester, Mass.; WCSH, Portland, Maine; WFI, Philadelphia; WBAL, Baltimore; WRC, Washington; WGY,

DISTRICT GOV. OATES OF LIONS HERE

International Officer Pays Brainerd
Lions Visit This
Week

DISCUSS CONVENTION PLANS

Predicts District Meeting in June
Here to Outclass Any Ever
Held in District

W. E. Oates, of Aberdeen, S. D., district governor of Lions International, paid the Brainerd Lions an official visit this week, when tentative plans were discussed for the district convention, to be held at Brainerd and Breezy Point next June. Following a meeting with the directors of the local club, Mr. Oates was taken to Breezy Point, where he was most agreeably surprised to find every factor necessary for successfully handling such a convention. He predicted a district meeting next June that will far eclipse any that have ever been held in this district. It is estimated that between 800 and 1,000 Lions from this district will attend next year's convention, and elaborate plans are to be made for their entertainment. Mr. Oates announced that tentative dates for the big meet had been set for Monday and Tuesday, June 11 and 12.

The district in which Brainerd is included is comprised of Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Manitoba and Saskatchewan. There are now 40 clubs in the district, with four in the process of organization, and it is the plan of the district governor to have at least 50 healthy clubs in existence by convention time next year.

At Wednesday's meeting of the local club, President I. C. Strout announced that October 28 and 29 had been set as the dates for the big meeting at Minneapolis of all executives of the district, who are to be guests of the Minneapolis den. Included in the invitation are all presidents and past secretaries. Plans for the June convention are to be discussed in detail, as well as other matters for the welfare and furtherance of Lionism in this district. The climax of the meet will come on the last afternoon, when all the visitors will be guests of the Minneapolis den at the university football game Oct. 29.

The Brainerd club has a busy program for itself during the next month. The meeting next Wednesday will be "Father and Sons Night" when boys of the community will be given an impression of what Lionism means.

Members with sons will have them in attendance, and those less fortunate will borrow sons for the occasion. The entertainment committee will present a special program of interest to boys.

Other events throughout the month, as now planned by the club, includes a visit to the Cuyuna range, where a meeting will be staged in conjunction with the civic organizations there, and a Ladies Night, to be held in the near future, the date to be set at next week's meeting. Plans for this Ladies Night have been placed in the hands of a committee composed of the bachelor members of the club, and they have promised to far outdoe any similar events that have been staged in the past.

OLD GLORY AND 3 AVIATORS BELIEVED LOST

pilots would rather give up all the money in the world than forego their flight. Most assured they will succeed."

Finally on Monday of this week, when Old Glory already waited at Old Orchard for the take-off, Payne received a plea from Hearst to abandon the flight.

"Think of my situation," he wired. "Have had one airplane lost and two fine men drowned." (His reference was to the Dole plane Golden Eagle in which Jack Frost and Gordon Scott lost their lives).

"I telegraphed you all this and tried have you get pilots to accept prize and give up dangerous adventure."

To which Payne, just before Old Glory started on its fatal flight, answered:

"The pilots appreciate your magnanimous offer but insist they be allowed to fill their contracts. Weather ideal today and further delay ruinous to morale of pilots. Every possible precaution taken. Army and navy inspectors went over Old Glory this morning and gave written approval to flight."

Although Payne had not advised Hearst he was going along, he ended the message with a personal note of affection for the publisher and asked his forgiveness for "any mistakes I have made."

The message was handed by Payne to a friend just before Old Glory took off and was filed after the departure.

OFFER TO FLY TO FIND "OLD GLORY"

Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, Sept. 8.—C. A. Schiller and Phil Wood of the monoplane Royal Windsor were unable to depart for England today, but they offered to fly in search of the missing Old Glory.

They informed the United Press the offer would remain open so long as there was a chance of Old Glory's airman being alive.

Moderate winds, fine weather and absence of fog were conditions upon which success of an aerial search would depend, Schiller said, as observation from a plane during fog, rain or haze would be ineffective.

There was a strong southeast wind today, with fog and rain. The forecast was for unsettled conditions. The Royal Windsor will not start for England until conditions improve.

Washington, Sept. 8.—Word that the New York Daily Mirror offered $16,000 for rescue of Old Glory's crew of three and $5,000 for discovery of the lost monoplane was broadcast today by navy radio.

Apron for Little Girls; It Can Be Easily Made

This little apron pattern combines many good features, says the Woman's Home Companion. Its chief asset is that it will not slip off the shoulders and little girls wearing it in cooking classes or at play will not be bothered by this nor by its pulling up at the back of the neck. The amount of material necessary has been cut to a minimum and the design is so simple that a little girl will have no difficulty in making it for herself.

DISTRICT GOV. OATES OF LIONS HERE

International Officer Pays Brainerd
Lions Visit This
Week

DISCUSS CONVENTION PLANS

Predicts District Meeting in June
Here to Outclass Any Ever
Held in District

W. E. Oates, of Aberdeen, S. D., district governor of Lions International, paid the Brainerd Lions an official visit this week, when tentative plans were discussed for the district convention, to be held at Brainerd and Breezy Point next June. Following a meeting with the directors of the local club, Mr. Oates was taken to Breezy Point, where he was most agreeably surprised to find every factor necessary for successful handling of such a convention. He predicted a district meeting next June that will far eclipse any that have ever been held in this district. It is estimated that between 800 and 1,000 Lions from this district will attend next year's convention, and elaborate plans are to be made for their entertainment. Mr. Oates announced that tentative dates for the big meet had been set for Monday and Tuesday, June 11 and 12.

The district in which Brainerd is included is comprised of Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Manitoba and Saskatchewan. There are now 40 clubs in the district, with four in the process of organization, and it is the plan of the district governor to have at least 50 healthy clubs in existence by convention time next year.

At Wednesday's meeting of the local club, President I. C. Strout announced that October 28 and 29 had been set as the dates for the big meeting at Minneapolis of all executives of the district, who are to be guests of the Minneapolis den. Included in the invitation are all presidents and past secretaries. Plans for the June convention are to be discussed in detail, as well as other matters for the welfare and furtherance of Lionism in this district. The climax of the meet will come on the last afternoon, when all the visitors will be guests of the Minneapolis den at the university football game Oct. 29.

The Brainerd club has a busy program for itself during the next month. The meeting next Wednesday will be "Father and Sons Night," when boys of the community will be given an impression of what Lionism means.

Members with sons will have them in attendance, and those less fortunate will borrow sons for the occasion. The entertainment committee will present a special program of interest to boys.

Other events throughout the month, as now planned by the club, includes a visit to the Cuyuna range, where a meeting will be staged in conjunction with the civic organizations there, and a Ladies Night, to be held in the near future, the date to be set at next week's meeting. Plans for this Ladies Night have been placed in the hands of a committee composed of the bachelor members of the club, and they have promised to far outdoe any similar events that have been staged in the past.

pilot's would rather give up all the money in the world than forego their flight. Most assured they will succeed."

Finally on Monday of this week, when Old Glory already waited at Old Orchard for the take-off, Payne received a plea from Hearst to abandon the flight.

"Think of my situation," he wired. "Have had one airplane lost and two fine men drowned." (His reference was to the Dole plane Golden Eagle in which Jack Frost and Gordon Scott lost their lives).

"I telegraphed you all this and tried have you get pilots to accept prize and give up dangerous adventure."

To which Payne, just before Old Glory started on its fatal flight, answered:

"The pilots appreciate your magnanimous offer but insist they be allowed to fill their contracts. Weather ideal today and further delay ruinous to morale of pilots. Every possible precaution taken. Army and navy inspectors went over Old Glory this morning and gave written approval to flight."

Although Payne had not advised Hearst he was going along, he ended the message with a personal note of affection for the publisher and asked his forgiveness for "any mistakes I have made."

The message was handed by Payne to a friend just before Old Glory took off and was filed after the departure.

OFFER TO FLY TO FIND "OLD GLORY"

Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, Sept. 8.—C. A. Schiller and Phil Wood of the monoplane Royal Windsor were unable to depart for England today, but they offered to fly in search of the missing Old Glory.

They informed the United Press the offer would remain open so long as there was a chance of Old Glory's airman being alive.

Moderate winds, fine weather and absence of fog were conditions upon which success of an aerial search would depend, Schiller said, as observation from a plane during fog, rain or haze would be ineffective.

There was a strong southeast wind today, with fog and rain. The forecast was for unsettled conditions. The Royal Windsor will not start for England until conditions improve.

Washington, Sept. 8.—Word that the New York Daily Mirror offered $10,000 for rescue of Old Glory's crew of three and $5,000 for discovery of the lost monoplane was broadcast today by navy radio.

Apron for Little Girls; It Can Be Easily Made

This little apron pattern combines many good features, says the Woman's Home Companion. Its chief asset is that it will not slip off the shoulders and little girls wearing it in cooking classes or at play will not be bothered by this nor by its pulling up at the back of the neck. The amount of material necessary has been cut to a minimum and the design is so simple that a little girl will have no difficulty in making it for herself.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH CORNERSTONE LAYING

Very Impressive Service to be Held at Hour of Regular Service
Sept. 11 at 10:30 A. M.

BOX DEPOSITED IN STONE

Ground Was Broken for New Church
Early in June, Rapid Progress Made

The First Presbyterian church will lay the corner-stone of its new church next Sunday morning, Sept. 11, at 10:30 o'clock. This very impressive service will be held at hour of the regular Sunday morning service. The service will be held at the new church in front of the main entrance. An order of service appropriate is being prepared. The men of the church are preparing for the comfort of the congregation that will assemble. There will be a box deposited in the stone. The articles it contains will be announced at the service.

Ground was broken for the new structure June 6. Since that time the work has been progressing very rapidly. The walls are rising rapidly, already inclosing the large Gothic windows that will adorn the church auditorium. Large "I" beams carry the load of the church eliminating all pillars in the basement auditorium. A large space provides for a modern and well equipped kitchen. Ample store room is furnished. The boiler room is five feet below the basement, adjoining it is a large fuel room and ash pit.

The massive pilasters upon which the "I" beams rest enhance the beauty of the structure. The roof will be laid with asbestos shingles, toned in color to harmonize with the brick which are mosaiced, rough in surface, carrying ten colors with lighter shades subdued. The church is trimmed in white cast stone.

The whole congregation has taken an unusually fine interest in working to bring the structure so rapidly to the stage it has reached. The rest of the work will be pushed just as rapidly as possible. The service Sunday will be open to the city and whole community. A large congregation is expected.

NAVY DEPARTMENT CANNOT UNDERTAKE SEARCH FOR PLANE

Washington, Sept. 8.—(UP)—The navy department cannot undertake a search for Old Glory, according to announcement here today.

Answering search appeals from two New York newspapers, the Graphic and Daily Mirror, the department said it has no ships near enough to mid-Atlantic to be in time to be of any assistance to the missing plane and its crew.

The nearest available vessel, it was learned, is the cruiser Trenton at Brooklyn navy yard.

ST. PAUL MAN TRIED TO KILL HIMSELF

St. Paul, Sept. 8.—(UP)—John B. Jensen, 40, fired a bullet into his head today in what police say was an attempt to kill himself. The shot aroused members of the family where Jensen roomed. At a hospital it was declared his condition was critical.

TWO STATE TROOPERS KILLED TRYING TO SERVE WARRANT

Caneada, N. Y., Sept. 8.—(UP)—Two state troopers were killed today in an attempt to serve a warrant of arrest on a minor charge on Roy Wagner, Rushford farmer.

Wagner stepped from the door of his home and discharged both barrels of a gun, killing Robert Roy and A. C. Rasmussen.

Fly-Tox Wins Cuban Award

Because of its outstanding quality and effectiveness, Fly-Tox was awarded both the Silver Cup and Certificate of Honor in the GRANTORNEO MERCANTILY PROFESIONAL de CUBA (Commercial and Professional Contest of Cuba). HI-Y PLANS

Active Year Contemplated by Y. M. C. A. Organization

At the first meeting of the Hi-Y last evening, held at the Y. M. C. A. under the leadership of Alex Nelson, president and Harold Gridley of the high school faculty as sponsor, plans were formulated for an interesting year to the members. Meetings are to be held each Wednesday evening throughout the school year at the Y. M. C. A.

Members agreed that the club furnished a great opportunity for high school boys to become familiar with organization and how to conduct meetings by actual experience. To learn how to express himself before an audience is the advantage of being a Hi-Y member, besides enjoying the many other opportunities, as entertainment, eats and fellowship.

BRAINERD LADIES BAND PLEASES

Concert at Lum Park Highly Enjoyed by Large Crowd Present

PLAY WITH PRECISION

Saxophone Quartet, and Singing Quartet Greeted With Much Applause

The Brainerd Ladies band scored another point for their chart of success when they gave another concert at Lum Park last Friday night. They have already attained fame and ardent admirers but still continue to draw a wider circle of friends. There was one of the largest crowds ever drawn to the park with the exception of the Jericho Outing. The park board had an able man to handle the parking of the cars and every bit of available parking space was used.

With their usual precision and musicianly reading of the score, they presented a very delightful program.

Mrs. Louis Johnson favored the audience with a tuba solo. Miss George Brown gave a pleasing "serenade" on the flute.

The quartet sang "Mighty Lull-A-Rose" and "Weeping Willow." The applause was so great a number of inches were necessary to satisfy the crowd.

The saxophone quartet was received with enthusiastic applause.

Too much cannot be said in praise of the leader, Mrs. Winnifred Ziebell who is a very able musician and has accomplished a great deal with the band.

FUR RANCHES BEING FENCED

Additional Carloads of Wire and Fencing Ordered by 10,000 Lakes Fur Farms

WORK WELL UNDER WAY

Minnewawa Ranch Completely Enclosed; C. W. Henke Reports Progress

Several additional carloads of wire and fencing material have been ordered by the Ten Thousand Lakes Fur Farms Corp., the first of which arrived in the city this week, according to C. W. Henke, vice-president, at the office of the company at 202 Iron Exchange building, Brainerd.

The work of fencing the Minnewawa Ranch near Aitkin has been completed, Mr. Henke said, and the crew will move next week to Clear Lake to begin the work of enclosing that property on Rice Lake, about five hundred acres with the most approved type of fencing.

On the Oak-Lawn, Brainerd project the work of brushing out the right-of-way for the fence is about completed and the fence posts distributed along the route. Completion of this fencing is being pushed rapidly, it is stated, and hopes are that that object will be attained before the freeze up.

Near Crosby the fencing operations are well under way and will be completed this fall. Gordon Emerson is in charge of a crew on this ranch. The route of the fence is through some very difficult territory, Mr. Henke said, and in many cases it is necessary to carry posts and wire in on the back.

POLICE PROTECT STRANDED BOYS

Three Minneapolis Youngsters Run Out of Transportation Money Here

SLEEP IN BARN

Found by Police in N. P. Yards Last Evening; On Way to International Falls

Lack of knowledge of geography of their own state placed three boys in the protection of the Brainerd police today, penniless.

The three boys, aged 12, 14, and 15, all of Minneapolis had planned to travel to International Falls where they were to join their parents. They took a train from Minneapolis to Brainerd, thinking that International Falls was only a short distance from here with the intention of walking or receiving lifts the remainder of the way. After arriving in Brainerd and using their money to eat they found themselves penniless with no place to sleep or eat.

Tuesday night the three boys slept in a barn on South 9th street and last evening they were found prowling around the N. P. yards. They were taken by police officers to the city jail where they spent the night and received their meals.

Today police wired their parents for transportation money and the boys continued their journey.

CASHIER PLEADS GUILTY

Harold L. Bratvold Received Suspended Sentence to Stillwater Till 1929

Granted permission to plead in district court at this time to the charge of grand larceny in the second degree, Harold L. Bratvold, former cashier of the First State bank of Ironton, pleaded guilty before Judge W. S. McClenahan this week, and was sentenced to Stillwater. Sentence however was suspended until November 1929.

Bratvold was arraigned in municipal court this week and bound over to the district court. He petitioned the court to be allowed to plead guilty.

The funeral will be conducted Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the residence, Rev. L. F. Strothman officiating. Interment will be in Evergreen cemetery.

CHORUS OF 41 PEOPLE

'Leave It To Gloria' Musical Comedy Revue to Have Five Different Groups

The opening chorus of "Leave It To Gloria," the big musical comedy revue to be presented at the Park theatre on Sept. 13 and 14 by St. Francis Guild, is a small sized musical show in itself, and not so very small sized, at that.

It is made up of five different groups, the summer girls and show girls in a rollicking chorus; the tennis and golf groups in lively song and dance numbers; the canoe girls in a delightfully rhythmic waltz number, and a solo waltz song to be sung by Phyllis Waldner, one of the characters in the cast. When the entire chorus is assembled there are 41 people on the stage, and the attractive costumes with the changing colors of the flood lights playing on

The smooth and mighty power of the steam engine - and obtained without the use of special fuels - - -

There is a new power in motordom—totally different in development and expression—totally new in range and efficiency—the smooth and mighty power of the steam engine delivered with the silky ease, dash and vivacity that stand out from all performance with brilliant luster.

The basis of this great Hudson capacity is a new companion invention to the Super-Six principle which turns waste heat to power. Together they combine achieved within our knowledge. It makes Hudson the most economical car per pound weight in the world.

In the new Hudson motor, spark knock heretofore characteristic of the high-compression motor is eliminated.

Ordinary gasoline gives the performance results sought through special and higher-priced fuels.

The New Hudson is receiving the greatest public reception in Hudson history, because in all ways it is the greatest Hudson Super-Six ever built.

Near Crosby the fencing operations are well under way and will be completed this fall. Gordon Emerson is in charge of a crew on this ranch. The route of the fence is through some very difficult territory, Mr. Henke said, and in many cases it is necessary to carry posts and wire in on the back.

POLICE PROTECT STRANDED BOYS

Three Minneapolis Youngsters Run Out of Transportation Money Here

SLEEP IN BARN

Found by Police in N. P. Yards Last Evening; On Way to International Falls

Lack of knowledge of geography of their own state placed three boys in the protection of the Brainerd police today, penniless.

The three boys, aged 12, 14, and 15, all of Minneapolis had planned to travel to International Falls where they were to join their parents. They took a train from Minneapolis to Brainerd, thinking that International Falls was only a short distance from here with the intention of walking or receiving lifts the remainder of the way. After arriving in Brainerd and using their penniless with no place to sleep or eat.

Tuesday night the three boys slept in a barn on South 9th street and last evening they were found prowling around the N. P. yards. They were taken by police officers to the city jail where they spent the night and received their meals.

Today police wired their parents for transportation money and the boys continued their journey.

CASHIER PLEADS GUILTY

Harold L. Bratvold Received Suspended Sentence to Stillwater Till 1929

Granted permission to plead in district court at this time to the charge of grand larceny in the second degree, Harold L. Bratvold, former cashier of the First State bank of Ironton, pleaded guilty before Judge W. S. McClenahan this week, and was sentenced to Stillwater. Sentence however was suspended until November 1929.

Bratvold was arraigned in municipal court this week and bound over to the district court. He petitioned the court to be allowed to plead guilty.

ACHINIST HERE 32 YEARS, DIES

N. B. Congdon, Resident of City 50 Years Passed Away Today at Hospital

FUNERAL SATURDAY

Born in Pennsylvania, Came to Brainerd at Age of Two Years; Located in Northeast

N. B. Congdon, 522 Fourth avenue N. E., a machinist at the Northern Pacific shops here for the past 32 years passed away early this morning at the St. Joseph's hospital from pneumonia.

Mr. Congdon was 52 years old. He was born in Pennsylvania but moved with his parents to Brainerd at the age of two years.

Surviving besides his widow, Mrs. Dora Congdon is a son, Merle, Brainerd; also his mother, Mrs. Lydia Congdon, two brothers, I. A. and Henry, of Brainerd and two sisters, Mrs. R. H. Tenny, of Minneapolis, and Mrs. George Curtis, of Seattle, Wash.

The funeral will be conducted Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the residence, Rev. L. F. Strothman officiating. Interment will be in Evergreen cemetery.

CHORUS OF 41 PEOPLE

'Leave It To Gloria' Musical Comedy Revue to Have Five Different Groups

The opening chorus of "Leave It To Gloria," the big musical comedy revue to be presented at the Park theatre on Sept. 13 and 14 by St. Francis Guild, is a small sized musical show in itself, and not so very small sized, at that.

It is made up of five different groups, the summer girls and show girls in a rollicking chorus; the tennis and golf groups in lively song and dance numbers; the canoe girls in a delightfully rhythmic waltz number, and a solo waltz song to be sung by Phyllis Waldner, one of the characters in the cast. When the entire chorus is assembled there are 41 people on the stage, and the attractive costumes with the changing colors of the flood lights playing on them make an extremely pretty and animated picture.

There are 16 other musical numbers in the score, ranging all the way from high class ballads to the jazziest sort of popular songs, and most of them are accompanied by attractive or amusing group dances.

J. M. HAYES FUNERAL

Will be Conducted Tomorrow Afternoon From House and First Baptist Church

The funeral of J. M. Hayes, former special municipal judge, who passed away Tuesday afternoon will be conducted tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence at 1022 South 7th street and at 2:30 o'clock from the First Baptist church, Rev. H. F. Damon, officiating. Interment will be at Evergreen cemetery.

Mrs. Harry Nee, of Duluth, a daughter, will attend the funeral.

A New Power in Motordom!

The smooth and mighty power of the steam engine - and obtained without the use of special fuels - - -

There is a new power in motordom—totally different in development and expression—totally new in range and efficiency—the smooth and mighty power of the steam engine delivered with the silky ease, dash and vivacity that stand out from all performance with brilliant luster.

The basis of this great Hudson capacity is a new companion invention to the Super-Six principle which turns waste heat to power. Together they combine the highest efficiency in power generation and transmission ever achieved within our knowledge. It makes Hudson the most economical car per pound weight in the world.

In the new Hudson motor, spark knock heretofore characteristic of the high-compression motor is eliminated.

Ordinary gasoline gives the performance results sought through special and higher-priced fuels.

The New Hudson is receiving the greatest public reception in Hudson history, because in all ways it is the greatest Hudson Super-Six ever built.

With the new high-compression, anti-knock motor that turns waste heat to power

SYNOPSIS

Fabien, good and handsome youth of France, trains for the priesthood; but meets and loves Manon Lescat, beautiful orphan, whose rascally brother, realizing her worldly value, barters her to Ravoire, rich connoisseur of women. Fabien saves her and carries her off to Paris. Manon's brother steals her for Ravoire. Circumstances force her to surrender to Ravoire. But presently she rejoins Fabien, and they live in dreamlike splendor. Creditors besiege them. Lescat suggests gambling to Fabien; shows him card tricks.

"Where did you ever get such an agile wrist?" inquired Lescat with admiration.
"You forget that for years I was a censer swinger in the church." Fabien's amazing adaptability in handling the cards absolutely sold him on the possibilities of the game. For hours he practiced under Lescat's tutelage, learning all the fine points and improving upon many of them. He acquired a remarkable facility in slight of hand tricks. With the help of a pair of long lace cuff ruffles he learned to shuffle and store certain cards away for future use with such adroitness that the keenest observer could detect nothing out of order.

Within a few days Lescat introduced Fabien to various clubs. It was vital that money in large quantities should be his, therefore Fabien

"I have been ordered to present you to a certain gentleman."

He cast his scruples to the winds and very soon piled up a real fortune.

He discovered that one could love money without being a miser. He loved it only because it had the power to make Manon happy. They were also able to continue their extravagant mode of living and devote the hours to love and pleasure without fear of being turned out on the streets.

Love is more satisfying than fame or wealth, but it cannot exist without certain artificial stimulation that comes from contact with things money can buy and the reflected glory that follows in the wake of fame.

Fabien was a sensitive lover. It humiliated him to resort to vulgar means of filling his purse, but love had worked such a change in him that he would have broken every Commandment in order to keep Manon with him and give her all her heart desired. Love had carried him far away from the road that led to a celibate's life at St. Sulpice; also, it had taken Manon away from a peaceful convent existence even before she had entered the sacred walls. Their love had made them both happy and miserable. It had taught them the agonies of separation, the gnawing anguish of doubt, the pain of poverty and the glorious contentment that comes with wealth and true love. It had gone so far as to turn Fabien into a cheat, but he had no regrets because all that he did was for Manon. He loved her! That was reason enough, at least for the time being.

Later Fabien was to find that when a man loves there is no end to serious problems that arise to mock his happiness.

CHAPTER XVII

A passion for gambling surged through Paris. The illustrious men and women of the day frequently gathered in the salons of the Duc de Richelieu to try their skill and see what fickle fortune could do for them before the night was over.

The Duc's magnificent apartment was also a favorite meeting place for the nobility, and on one particular night Miss Majesty King Louis XV came in company with Comte de Ravoire. He was in search of diversion and wore a mysterious little black eye mask to prevent recognition.

However, the disguise did not deceive the Duc de Richelieu, and when he saw the two distinguished gentlemen enter his salon he greeted them in a friendly fashion, omitting the courtly bow that was really the King's due.

"That is right," observed His Majesty, "I wish to remain incognito. Tell no one I am here."

"It is a command!" replied the Duc gravely.

His Majesty leisurely surveyed the people in the room before turning to the Comte with a shrug of annoyance. "The women are disappointing—perhaps the cards will divert us. Who is your keenest player?" The King prided himself on being very shrewd with the cards—and he was.

"A gentleman who is not yet here," replied the Duc, "Monsieur le Chevalier Des Grieux—he has recently made a fortune at our table."

The Comte flushed hotly at mention of Fabien's name and did not share the King's interest. He had not seen Fabien since that night at Frascatti's when the still unavenged insult was made in the presence of a room full of people. Nevertheless, the Comte knew that Manon had deserted him for the fiery young man, and he was determined to revenge himself in some way that would cause them both great anguish.

"I shall look forward to playing with your wizard—and I shall win! Bring him to me for a game as soon as he arrives." The King chuckled in pleasant anticipation.

"You need not wait long, your Majesty," whispered the Duc, "for there he is just coming down stairs with his lady, Manon Lescat."

The King turned slowly, then stopped—spellbound—as his masked eyes rested upon Manon. Never had she looked more gorgeously sweet and desirable. Fabien's wealth had enabled him to buy the most precious things Paris offered, and the mere fact that Manon wore them made their beauty more alluring. Love had also worked its miracle of perfection with her figure, and the expression on her face was a mixture of adorable innocent charm and irresistible seductiveness.

His Majesty noticed that her ornaments were as handsome as any of the crown jewels, also that she wore them like a Queen.

Through the slits of the small black mask Louis feasted his eyes on Manon's fascinating beauty. He was so intrigued that not for a moment did he permit the figure of her escort to intrude on his vision.

"A little Venus!" exclaimed the King, grasping Richelieu's arm. "Present her to me immediately."

As the Duc de Richelieu went off on his mission the King was attracted by the mention of Manon's name. Inclining his head without turning around, he listened intently to a conversation going on at a nearby table.

"So you think you can copy the pretty ways of Manon—don't, it ceases you ridiculous," said a man to Nana.

"You old blockhead," she snapped back, "Manon has the best technique in Paris! See how it works with Fabien—he simply leads her with diamonds. Nana was dressed in the best possible imitation she could manage, to make herself look like Manon; she also assumed an innocent air and amused everyone by adopting a demure, sweet tone of voice."

"I see that he leads her with jewels—and she looks beautiful in them—but Nana, if I had the Chevalier's genius for cards I could buy the crown jewels."

The King was amused at hearing this reference to the royal jewel box. However, his interest in the gossip waxed and he impatiently awaited the arrival of Manon. He did not even answer when the Comte spoke—he was devising a plan that would make Manon his, just as surely as he was the King of France. It was a cruel ruse he had in mind.

The things men do when they love, or think they do, are not worth honorable mention. That time old saying, "All is fair in love and war," will ever be used as an excuse for many digressions, and King Louis XV did not prove an exception to the rule.

Fabien and Manon were the center of an eager group, who greeted them as soon as they came down the stairs. He was as greatly admired by the women as she was by the men.

On that particular night Fabien was attired in lustrous white satin. His coat buttons, buckles and fob were resplendent with diamonds. It was perhaps significant that the exquisite lace on his cuffs was a little fuller and longer than usual. Contact with the world plus his recent prosperity gave him an air of assurance that was most attractive. All of this, coupled with his natural gentlemanly manner and courteous attentiveness to Manon made him a paragon of all that was expected of a man—at least from the feminine viewpoint.

The Duc de Richelieu intruded on the little group and said, "I have been ordered to present you to a certain gentleman."

The Great Bank

The Grand or Great bank is the name of a shoal off the coast of Newfoundland. It is several hundred miles in diameter and is famous for cod-fishing. The word "bank" in this sense means an elevation or shelf under sea, which produces a shoal or shallow.

The One Who Waited

By AD SCHUSTER

MYRON POTTLE, proprietor of Pottle's Peerless Eating House, greeted his customers with more than his usual pride, for the restaurant which had been in business for more than twenty years was newly decorated and this was like another opening day. Uniformed waitresses stood expectantly beside the tables in place of the men who had served and in the center of each white cloth was a vase of flowers.

"This," said Myron to himself, "is what I call classy."

It was only when he thought of old Ed that his smile disappeared and the proprietor felt a twinge of conscience. He was a quiet middle-aged man when he took the job and in his time had waited on all the big men in town. And now he would have to go. Myron shrugged his shoulders and told himself that sentiment cannot be carried too far in business and that a lot of restaurant men would have dismissed the old fellow long before.

Ed sensed the change when he arrived to take on the twelve o'clock shift. He looked at the girls as if he doubted his senses. There had never been a waitress here before. This was a man's shop. And now they were all girls, all except himself.

It struck him that perhaps Myron would keep him as a sort of overseer. He would need some one to show the girls how things were done, how to work the butter cutter, the egg boiler and the coffee urn. A steady head among the bobbled, he reflected, was what was needed. As Myron, dreading to break the news, said nothing Ed took heart and tried to step briskly. He would show these girls.

"He can't hear more than half what's said to him," Myron mused, "and he is forever reading the prices wrong. I lose customers and money so long as I keep him and yet, and yet old Ed would do anything for me."

In his anxiety to please, Ed made more mistakes than usual. Complaints were brought to the desk and a decision was made.

"I'll wait," Myron put off the ordeal, "until he goes home and then I will telephone him."

So it was in the dull hour next morning Myron, after rehearsing what he would say, telephoned to the waiter who had helped build the business and had once been the pride of the shop. The practical speech failed in the test, Myron stammered, apologized, explained, and finished by making an offer of a month's wages in advance, something that had not occurred to him before.

There was a moment of silence on the other end of the line, a moment which seemed hours to the worried restaurant proprietor. Was Ed thinking back to the days when there were but four tables in the place and when Myron handled the counter? Was he wondering what he would do, now, to earn a living?

Myron pictured the old man trying to find a job at his trade in a day when the restaurants were hiring girls. If he were a little younger, just a little like he used to be in the old days it would be easy. But now there was no one who would see in the near-sighted old man material for a waiter.

Then he heard Ed making reply. "It's all right," the waiter said, "I sort of expected it."

This was worse than he had hoped.

"I was wondering," Ed continued, "if you want to sell out and how much you wanted."

Chinese Idea of Hell Is Eternal Torment

Once the expression "tickled to death" meant exactly what it says. Chinese felons were, in olden times, shut in boxes or crates with their feet sticking out.

An expert officer would proceed to tickle the feet of the felon until he died.

While the general run of Chinese do not believe in a hell or heaven, there are certain sects who do. One of these has a hell made up of various chambers through which the bad spirits must pass. Among these chambers there is one "Tickling Chamber," where the culprit is tickled by expert devils for 10,000 years, with no hope of even one moment's relief.

In all these sects they have some thing like 10,000 different torture chambers or departments, and after a bad spirit has gone the rounds, which consume millions of years, he must start again at No. 1 and go through them time and again for all eternity.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Sounded All Right

In a reading lesson in Miss B's room, little Betty came to the word "nothing." She glibly called it "anything." After struggling with the word for some time Miss B. said: "Sound the word; it begins with 'n'." With a snap in her eye, Betty fairly shouted, "Anything" (nothing).

Worship Palm Tree

Thousands of peasants are joining the great pilgrimage to pray to the newly discovered "sun-worshipping" palm tree at Sagota village, in the Paba district, India. They report the palm bends gradually at sunrise, lies on the ground at noon and rises at sunset.

SYNOPSIS

Fabien, good and handsome youth of France, trains for the priesthood; but meets and loves Manon Lescaut, beautiful orphan, whose rascally brother, realizing her worldly value, barters her to Ravoire, rich connoisseur of women. Fabien saves her and carries her off to Paris. Manon's brother steals her for Ravoire. Circumstances force her to surrender to Ravoire. But presently she rejoins Fabien, and they live in dreamlike splendor. Creditors besiege them. Lescaut suggests gambling to Fabien; shows him card tricks.

"Where did you ever get such an agile wrist?" inquired Lescaut with admiration.

"You forget that for years I was a censer swinger in the church." Fabien's amazing adaptability in handling the cards absolutely sold him on the possibilities of the game. For hours he practiced under Lescaut's tutelage, learning all the fine points and improving upon many of them. He acquired a remarkable facility in slight of hand tricks. With the help of a pair of long lace cuff ruffles he learned to shuffle and store certain cards away for future use with such adroitness that the keenest observer could detect nothing out of order.

Within a few days Lescaut introduced Fabien to various clubs. It was vital that money in large quantities should be his, therefore Fa-bien cast his scruples to the winds and very soon piled up a real fortune.

He discovered that one could love money without being a miser. He loved it only because it had the power to make Manon happy. They were also able to continue their extravagant mode of living and devote the hours to love and pleasure without fear of being turned out on the streets.

Love is more satisfying than fame or wealth, but it cannot exist without certain artificial stimulation that comes from contact with things money can buy and the reflected glory that follows in the wake of fame.

Fabien was a sensitive vulgar, it humiliated him to resort to vulgar means of filling his purse, but love had worked such a change in his nature that he would have broken every Commandment in order to keep Manon with him and give her all her heart desired. Love had carried him far away from the road that lead to a celibate's life at St. Sulpice; also, it had taken Manon away from a peaceful convent existence even before she had entered the sacred walls. Their love had made them both happy and miserable. It had taught them the agonies of separation, the gnawing anguish of doubt, the pain of poverty and the glorious contentment that comes with wealth and true love. It had gone so far as to turn Fabien into a cheat, but he had no regrets because all that he did was for Manon. He loved her! That was reason enough, at least for the time being.

Later Fabien was to find that when a man loves there is no end to serious problems that arise to mock his happiness.

CHAPTER XVII

A passion for gambling surged through Paris. The illustrious men and women of the day frequently gathered in the salons of the Duc de Richelieu to try their skill and see what fickle fortune could do for them before the night was over.

The Duc's magnificent apartment was also a favorite meeting place for the nobility, and on one particular night Miss Majesty King Louis XV came in company with Comte de Ravoire. He was in search of diversion and wore a mysterious little black eye mask to prevent recognition.

However, the disguise did not deceive the Duc de Richelieu, and when he saw the two distinguished gentlemen enter his salon he greeted them in a friendly fashion, omitting the courtly bow that was really the King's due.

"That is right," observed His Majesty, "I wish to remain incognito. Tell no one I am here."

"It is a command!" replied the Duc gravely.

His Majesty leisurely surveyed the people in the room before turning to the Comte with a shrug of annoyance. "The women are disappointing—perhaps the cards will divert us. Who is your keenest player?" The King prided himself on being very shrewd with the cards—and he was.

"A gentleman who is not yet here," replied the Duc, "Monsieur le Chevalier Des Grieux—he has recently made a fortune at our tables."

The Comte flushed hotly at mention of Fabien's name and did not share the King's interest. He had not seen Fabien since that night at Lescaut's when the still unwearying insult was made in the presence of a room full of people. Nevertheless, the Comte knew that Manon had deserted him for the fiery young man, and he was determined to revenge himself in some way that would cause them both great anguish.

"I shall look forward to playing with your wizard—and I shall win! Bring him to me for a game as soon as he arrives." The King chuckled in pleasant anticipation. "You need not wait long, your Majesty," whispered the Duc, "for there he is just coming down stairs with his lady, Manon Lescaut."

The King turned slowly, then stopped—spellbound—as his masked eyes rested upon Manon. Never had she looked more gorgeously sweet and desirable. Fabien's wealth had enabled him to buy the most priceless things Paris offered, and the mere fact that Manon wore them made their beauty more alluring. Love had also worked its miracle of perfection with her figure, and the expression on her face was a mixture of adorable innocent charm and irresistible seductiveness.

His Majesty noticed that her ornaments were as handsome as any of the crown jewels, also that she wore them like a Queen.

Through the slits of the small black mask Louis feasted his eyes on Manon's fascinating beauty. He was so intrigued that not for a moment did he permit the figure of her escort to intrude on his vision. "A little Venus!" exclaimed the King, grasping Richelieu's arm. "Present her to me immediately."

As the Duc de Richelieu went off on his mission the King was attracted by the mention of Manon's name. Inclining his head without turning around, he listened intently to a conversation going on at a nearby table.

"So you think you can copy the pretty ways of Manon—don't, it makes you ridiculous," said a man to Nana.

"You old blockhead," she snapped back, "Manon has the best technique in Paris! See how it works with Fabien—he simply loads her with diamonds. Nana was dressed in the best possible imitation she could manage, to make herself look like Manon; she also assumed an innocent air and amused everyone by adopting a demure, sweet tone of voice."

"I see that he loads her with jewels—and she looks beautiful in them—but Nana, if I had the Chevalier's genius for cards I could buy the crown jewels."

The King was amused at hearing this reference to the royal jewel box. However, his interest in the gossip waxed and he impatiently awaited the arrival of Manon. He did not even answer when the Comte spoke—he was devising a plan that would make Manon his, just as surely as he was the King of France. It was a cruel ruse he had in mind.

The things men do when they love, or think they do, are not worth honorable mention. That time old saying, "All is fair in love and war," will ever be used as an excuse for many digressions, and King Louis XV did not prove an exception to the rule.

Fabien and Manon were the center of an eager group, who greeted them as soon as they came down the stairs. He was as greatly admired by the women as she was by the men.

On that particular night Fabien was attired in lustrous white satin. His coat buttons, buckles and fob were resplendent with diamonds. It was perhaps significant that the exquisite lace on his cuffs was a little fuller and longer than usual. Contact with the world plus his recent prosperity gave him an air of assurance that was most attractive. All of this, coupled with his natural gentlemanly manner and courteous attentiveness to Manon made him a paragon of all that was expected of a man—at least from the feminine viewpoint.

The Duc de Richelieu intruded on the little group and said, "I have been ordered to present you to a certain gentleman."

The Great Bank

The Grand or Great bank is the name of a shoal off the coast of Newfoundland. It is several hundred miles in diameter and is famous for cod-fishing. The word "bank" in this sense means an elevation or shelf under sea, which produces a shoal or shallow.

The One Who Waited

By AD SCHUSTER

MYRON POTTLE, proprietor of Pottle's Peerless Eating House, greeted his customers with more than his usual pride, for the restaurant which had been in business for more than twenty years was newly decorated and this was like another opening day. Uniformed waitresses stood expectantly beside the tables in place of the men who had served and in the center of each white cloth was a vase of flowers.

"This," said Myron to himself, "is what I call classy."

It was only when he thought of old Ed that his smile disappeared and the proprietor felt a twinge of conscience. He was a quiet middle-aged man when he took the job and in his time had waited on all the big men in town. And now he would have to go. Myron shrugged his shoulders and told himself that sentiment cannot be carried too far in business and that a lot of restaurant men would have dismissed the old fellow long before.

Ed sensed the change when he arrived to take on the twelve o'clock shift. He looked at the girls as if he doubted his senses. There had never been a waitress here before. This was a man's shop. And now they were all girls, all except himself.

It struck him that perhaps Myron would keep him as a sort of overseer. He would need some one to show the girls how things were done, how to work the butter cutter, the egg boiler and the coffee urn. A steady head among the bobbled, he reflected, was what was needed. As Myron, dreading to break the news, said nothing Ed took heart and tried to step briskly. He would show these girls.

"He can't hear more than half what's said to him," Myron mused, "and he is forever reading the prices wrong. I lose customers and money so long as I keep him and yet, and yet old Ed would do anything for me."

In his anxiety to please, Ed made more mistakes than usual. Complaints were brought to the desk and a decision was made.

"I'll wait," Myron put off the ordeal, "until he goes home and then I will telephone him."

So it was in the dull hour next morning Myron, after rehearsing what he would say, telephoned to the waiter who had helped build the business and had once been the pride of the shop. The practical speech failed in the test, Myron stammered, apologized, explained, and finished by making an offer of a month's wages in advance, something that had not occurred to him before.

There was a moment of silence on the other end of the line, a moment which seemed hours to the worried restaurant proprietor. Was Ed thinking back to the days when there were but four tables in the place and when Myron handled the counter? Was he wondering what he would do, now, to earn a living?

Myron pictured the old man trying to find a job at his trade in a day when the restaurants were hiring girls. If he were a little younger, just a little like he used to be in the old days it would be easy. But now there was no one who would see in the near-sighted old man material for a waiter.

Then he heard Ed making reply, "It's all right," the waiter said, "I sort of expected it."

This was worse than if he had protested.

"I was wondering," Ed continued, "if you want to sell out and how much you wanted."

Chinese Idea of Hell

Is Eternal Torment

Once the expression "ticked to death" meant exactly what it says. Chinese felons were, in olden times, shut in boxes or crates with their feet sticking out.

An expert officer would proceed to tickle the feet of the felon until he died.

While the general run of Chinese do not believe in a hell or heaven, there are certain sects who do. One of these has a hell made up of various chambers through which the bad spirits must pass. Among these chambers there is one "Tickling Chamber," where the culprit is tickled by expert devils for 10,000 years, with no hope of even one moment's relief.

In all these sects they have something like 10,000 different torture chambers or departments, and after a bad spirit has gone the rounds, which consume millions of years, he must start again at No. 1 and go through them time and again for all eternity.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Sounded All Right

In a reading lesson in Miss R.'s room, little Betty came to the word "nothing." She giggled called it "anything." After struggling with the word for some time Miss B. said: "Sound the word; it begins with 'n.'" With a snap in her eye, Betty fairly shouted, "Anything" (anything).

Worship Palm Tree

Thousands of peasants are joining the great pilgrimage to pray to the newly discovered "sun-worshipping" palm tree at Sogota village, in the Paba district, India. They report the palm bends gradually at sunrise, lies on the ground at noon and rises at sunset.

"Gob" of Uncertain Origin

The derivation of the word "gob," applied to sailors, is uncertain. Some authorities say that it comes from the Chinese; others, that the word was adopted from England. "Gob" in provincial English means a "coast guardman," probably from the fact that the seamen were accustomed to chew tobacco, since "gob" in English also means a "little lump or piece, or a mouthful."
